

Art installation downtown is clever, meaningful

On my walk home from the Central Library on a beautiful sunny day, I spotted a thought-provoking and well-executed art installation on Elm Street and Cortland across from Tower 280.

The Rochester chapter of the American Institute of Architects, with artists and architects, has designed a well documented art installation of small structures, each carefully annotated with signs giving cogent explanations of their meaning to Rochester, to our history and our ecology.

Clever, charming and meaningful, this surprise was a delight. We need more like it.
